Wing Dingin' good time

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

The 25th annual Cookstown Wing Ding got back to its roots last weekend, as Ontario's Biggest Yard Sale.

Village residents emptied their garages and basements, and invited friends and family from as far away as Vaughan, Sault Ste. Marie and Bracebridge to bring in their treasures to sell.

Outside vendors, offering everything from jams to hand-crafted jewellery and antiques, were allowed to set up for one day only, at the fairgrounds beside the Cookstown Public Library - where the library held its book sale, the Cookstown Chamber of Commerce organized entertainment, and the new splash pad, once again operational, it provided fun for youngsters on a hot, sunny day.

Everywhere there was a festive atmosphere - and a plethora of fundraisers, for a wide range of causes.

On King St., Paul and Ellen Kent held the 7th annual Bake Sale in memory of their son David Kent, with help from family and friends.

All of the home-baking was sold by donation, and all of the funds raised went to the "Dave Kent Lusters" team participating in the Canadian Cancer Society's Relay for Life, this year taking place June 13-14 in Alliston. In the past seven years, the Dave Kent Lusters have raised over $30,000 for the Cancer Society.

Around the corner, 6 year old Charlotte was raising funds for a different goal. She made and sold cupcakes to earn the money for a hot air balloon ride. She's wanted to take a balloon ride "since I was really little. Maybe 3," she says. And she'll have at least one more year to raise the funds.

Community benefits from public art

Artist Ron Baird poses with a maquette of his new kinetic sculpture, Jig Rig, commissioned by Innisfil Hydro for its new facility near the Innisfil Rec Centre.

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

There was plenty of controversy when the city of Toronto decided to purchase a sculpture by Henry Moore, for the plaza in front of its new City Hall.

Once installed, The Archer became an accepted part of the urban landscape.

There has been controversy surrounding the decision of Innisfil Hydro to commission an original sculpture by Ron Baird - the artist who created the iconic Spirit Catcher sculpture, that now overlooks Kempenfelt Bay in Barrie.

At the Innisfil Arts Culture & Heritage Council's Members' Meeting on June 9, Baird brought in a maquette of "Jig Rig," the polished stainless steel, kinetic sculpture he designed for Innisfil Hydro, and talked about the importance of public art in the community.

The impact, Baird said, is both financial - studies have shown that "for every $1 invested in art, $2.70 comes back" - and inspirational. Significant pieces, like The Archer in Toronto and The Spirit Catcher in Barrie, become iconic over time, helping to define the character of the community.

"We're excited about it," said IACHC

Past Chair Jane Dewar, noting that the 12 metre high sculpture will be located at the new Innisfil Hydro headquarters on Yonge St., within view of the Innisfil Recreation Complex and in the geographic centre of the Town of Innisfil.

Innisfil Hydro has budgeted $125,000 for the artwork.

Vendor Take Back Mortgages

Over the past few weeks, I have had a number of clients approach me asking what I thought about Vendor take back mortgages (VTB), and would I recommend they enter into such arrangements.

A VTB is where the Vendor, rather than a financial institution, such as a Bank or Credit Union, finances the mortgage. This may be all of the mortgage required to complete the purchase, or just a portion of it. In any case, the title to the property is transferred to the Purchaser, with a registered lien (mortgage) in favour of the Vendor.

The rate and terms of a VTB are negotiable, but you should note that in most cases the interest rate is higher than you would get at a traditional lending institution. This is because there are higher risks that the Vendor is willing to accept.

Some Reasons You May Consider A VTB:

- Easier to Qualify – allows persons to purchase properties that they would not qualify for through traditional funding. Qualifying for a VTB really is just coming to acceptable terms with the Vendor, as opposed to meeting specific requirements at a bank.
- Lower Down Payment – this can allow you to purchase a higher end or larger property with the same amount of funds. You can even be more flexible in making real estate investments, such as purchasing rental properties. This may allow you to buy multiple properties, without tying up a large amount of cash in each property. This may also provide a greater return on investment.
- Good Interest Rates – in some cases, VTB offer cheaper interest rates than private mortgage lenders. Similarly, there are lower fees and less cost and time associated with VTB.

As it relates to the Vendor, he may want to provide a VTB after considering the following:

- Tax Deferral – because the Vendor isn't receiving 100% of the sale cost up front in one fiscal year, this may lead to lower capital gains taxes. This is therefore an incentive for the Vendor.
- Higher Selling Price – prospective Purchasers may be inclined to offer a higher purchase price if they are able to negotiate favourable interest and terms with the Vendor.
- Higher Return on Investment – this may be a good investment for the Vendor as he may be able to receive a higher return on his investment, as opposed to more traditional investments.

Despite the advantages, a VTB should only be entered into after careful consideration and consultation with a real estate lawyer.

A day later, and more dollars short

See no evil, hear no evil. That's generally how the tax-and-spend crowd approach our fiscal framework. Special interests wanting to shakedown the taxpayer for more handouts rarely present data to show just how much you're being hosed.

Politicians bribing you with your own money tend not to speak about just how much of a hit to your pocketbook their magic bean promises are going to make.

Which is why we're grateful to the Fraser Institute for its annual Tax Freedom Day bulletin.

That's the day when you finally stop working to pay off the taxes the three levels of government take from you, and start working to support your own family.

This year it felt on Monday, June 9. Canadians, you are now free!

(Actually that's the federal average. It changes based on province. Albertans made it out on May 23, but those in Newfoundland and Labrador are still shackled to the taxman until June 22.)

To get these dates, they tally up the total local, provincial and federal tax burdens and compare them with incomes.

The tally includes taxes on property, gas, booze, vehicles ... as everyone knows all too well, the list goes on.

The report, authored by Milagros Palacios and Charles Lammam, tells us "the total tax bill of the average Canadian family in 2014 will amount to 43.5% of its income."

Yikes. Almost half your income goes to government!

Silly us. There we were thinking all along that government exists to serve the taxpayer. Apparently it's the other way around.

Here's another troublesome nugget: Between 2013 and 2014 average Canadian family income increased by 2.1%. But the total tax bill went up by 3.2%. Even when you're ahead, they make sure you're still behind!

That partially explains why Tax Freedom Day comes one day later this year.

Sometimes when it comes later it can be the sign of a rebounding economy — incomes increase so people move into higher brackets and consume more.

But however you spin it, Canadians shell out a lot of taxes ... then they read about politicians mispending their money or new regulations nobody wants.

Just another reminder that government needs to go back to basics and live within its means.

Letters

Thanks to Sunset Speedway

Dear Editor:

As a resident of Alcona, I have watched our town grow but it is nice to see that Innisfil has not lost its sense of community in the process.

It is important to my husband and I that our son is not only raised with the same morals and values that our parents taught us but also with a connection to our community. Building a strong relationship with local businesses, being involved and taking pride in the town you live in is just as important in our eyes.

Many of our childrens' lessons are reinforced through their schools, so it is fantastic when you see the two come together to achieve a goal.

The Holy Cross Catholic School Parent Council approached Sunset

Speedway in Innisfil to do a school fundraiser and without hesitation, Sunset Speedway loved and supported the idea of joining us in an effort to improve our school playground.

On May 31, that is what happened, for every fundraising coupon handed in with their admission, Sunset Speedway graciously donated a portion of that admission back to our school. The response was overwhelming, "It is a WIN WIN situation!", was just one of the comments that night. If that was not enough, Sunset Speedway has allowed our school to continue our efforts throughout the summer months.

A great big thank you to the owners of Sunset Speedway and especially Steve Slaughter who helped arrange the event.

The children of Holy Cross, their families and their friends that attended the event had a thrilling evening thanks to you and all the racers. You helped our school take the checkered flag!

We'll see you all at the races!

PSA test costs should be covered

Did you know that Ontario is one of only two provinces that doesn't cover the cost of the PSA test for prostate cancer?

That's why Prostate Cancer Canada wants the provincial government to give Ontarians fair and equal access to PSA testing that is covered by OHIP.

The PSA test is a simple blood test, taken from your arm, that measures the amount of prostate specific antigen (PSA) in your blood.

Without testing for prostate cancer, the excellent survival rate because of early detection is lost and men are diagnosed at a much later stage, when death from the disease becomes more likely.

While there are controversies with the PSA test, high numbers serve as a powerful red flag for further investigation; mortality from prostate cancer has declined by an estimated 40% in the last 20 years since the PSA test was introduced. What kind of message are we sending to men about the test — and their health in general — if we are asking them to pay for the test out of pocket?

Just like the message for our new June event says: 'This year, we have to Do it for Dads, because when it comes to their health, sadly Dads don't do it for themselves.'] This June we asked Ontario residents to take 30 seconds to tell their provincial election candidates, in all parties, that they support coverage of PSA tests for Ontarians. We have made it extremely easy to do so via the online advocacy tool psatests-forontario.ca.

One click for a test that can save lives and should be covered in all provinces.

Thanks to everyone for helping to clean up

Approximately 30 bags of garbage were collected by resident volunteers from the Minet's Point community on Saturday, June 7, with over 14 volunteers all working together in this little summer clean-up.

The main effort was focused on the Minet's Point Park beach front, the ravine and the roadside area of Hurst Drive. Volunteers scoured the area and removed plastic bottles, bags, coffee cups, cigarette butts, etc. The idea to conduct the cleanup was brought up by members of the Minet's Point Community Neighbourhood Watch group. Barrie's parks department also assisted the community by generously offering support, and supplying gloves and yellow plastic bags for volunteers. Together the efforts of all eventually lead to creating a cleaner and safer community for residents and families in Minet's Point community.

Thanks for all the assistance.

Dad Markus contacted two hot air balloon companies. "One said you had to be 11, another said 7," to go aloft, he said.

Around the corner, at the Old Cookstown Library on Queen St., the Around the Corners art group partnered with the Cookstown Chamber of Commerce to present "Creative Cookstown" - an art show, and "Cookstown's Coziest Chair" competition.

There were 8 entries in this year's contest. At noon on June 8, organizer and artist Christina Luck announced the winners: 10-year-old friends Weston and Kanyon, who transformed an old massage chair into a "Rocket Chair"; "Innisfil on the Beach" by Mike and Shirley Richard; the "Butterfly Forest" of Elizabeth McDevitt and daughter Eryn; and People's Choice - the port-a-potty transformed by Roger and Linda Johnson into a "Throne room."

Luck noted that the "eight fabulous entries really inspired people for next year's contest".

And residents are already signing up for the 3rd annual Cookstown's Coziest Chair competition at the 2015 Wing Ding.

Barrie Native Friendship Centre's annual Traditional Pow Wow

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

For the past few years, ever since the closure of Molson Park, the Barrie Native Friendship Centre's annual Traditional Pow Wow has been held at Wolf's Den Archery, in Essa Township.

This year, the 25th annual Pow Wow had a new venue: the new Essa Agriplex, which offered bleacher seating, as well as space for tents and lawn chairs.

The setting may have been new, but the costumes and the dances were traditional, as host and guest drums sang in the harbour area.

Men's traditional dancers, grass dancers, women's traditional dancers, jingle dancers and fancy shawl dancers of all ages participated, entering the circle in a Grand Entry salute to veterans, warriors and their ancestors.

Flag-bearers carried the flags of Canada, and of First Nations people, led by the Eagle Staffs. It was a solemn and ceremonial start to the dancing, and spectators were asked to stand in respect. But then the beat got lively, for intertribal dancing and everyone was invited to join in.

TD Summer Reading Club back

Special to the Innisfil Examiner

The TD Summer Reading Club has returned to the Innisfil Public Library under the creative, imagination-sparking theme of 'Eureka!'

A variety of fun, collaborative programs and special events have been planned which will invite children to invent, create and explore new projects, as well as maintain and improve literacy skills during the summer months.

"Once again we are delighted to be offering the TD Summer Reading Club at our library branches in order to encourage literacy within the community. However, we are looking at building skills across a variety of mediums," said Chief Librarian and CEO Susan Downs. "We have shifted our focus to one of 'transliteracy' which means being able to understand, connect and use information from all sources, both physical and virtual. It encompasses everything from writing, creative media, film, art, and digital social networks."

In action, this idea of 'transliteracy' will result in activities focused on media, digital programming, making, hacking, and creation. Children will have opportunities to make artistic projects, such as t-shirts, Lego creations and light-bulb bookmarks; experiment with carbonation and electricity; and discover more about photography, film and exactly how the Internet works. Special guests include YTV Personality Incredibrent, the Simcoe Contemporary Dancers, and local musician Patty McLaughlin.

Go to www.innisfilibrary.ca/summer-programs for more details on the TD Summer Reading Program, as well as all programs and special events. Registration is available at all branches.

Students learning the value of voting

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

Young people were dipping their toes into the waters of democracy on Wednesday.

Barrie Central Collegiate students joined more than 140,000 students across the province in Student Vote Ontario 2014.

Student Vote is a parallel election which coincides with official elections. Students learn about the democratic process, party platforms and local candidates through classroom learning, campaign events and take-home activities.

The program culminates with an authentic in-school vote where students take on the roles of election officials and cast ballots on the official candidates in their electoral district.

Results will be tabulated on June 12 following the closing of polls.

Barrie Central political sciences teacher Mike Ramsay said all students at attended the May 25 all-candidates debate held at the school and got a feel for the parties' platforms. He estimated about 80% of them voted Wednesday.

The school had sworn-in poll clerks who would count the vote as Elections Ontario officials would do on election day, he said, adding students will be interested to see how their school fared against others across the province in picking the the political party that wins the election.

"Some elections we've been bang on with the federal or provincial results," Ramsay said. "Others, nowhere close."

Ramsay said some teenagers initially vote based on what they hear at home and make up their own minds as they mature.

"Or they'll do the exact opposite simply because of adolescent rebellion," he said.

"Social media has allowed people to believe that their voices are heard by politicians, that you're potentially getting your voice out there so you don't have to follow up with a vote. But I stress that's a virtual democracy and it has zero power in the real world," Ramsay said.

Josh Morison, 17, said he sees a real-world example of why he should vote.

"Depending on who gets in, it will affect us in how it works out if they help pay for post-secondary costs or not," Morison said. The Liberal party has offered a 30% reduction in university tuition, where the Progressive Conservatives have said they'll cut that grant.

Brandon Amyot, 17, said casting a vote means your voice will be heard and you can make a difference.

"If you're apathetic about it (and don't vote), then you have no right to complain about it," he said, adding that young people need to keep abreast of the candidates and the issues. "I think what's even worse than not voting is having someone who votes but doesn't know a thing about what's going on."

Ramsay said young people should be encouraged to make a habit of voting.

"With declining voter turnout in most of the population under 55, it's vital to the survival of democracy that we get students voting as early as possible, and as frequently as possible, so they adopt voting as a healthy routine or positive habit: just like a work out routine," he said.

"I've noticed over the past 25 years of teaching high school politics and history that a growing number of students, and adults, think they have their say by simply posting an on-line opinion, tweet, or Facebook posting and therefore, they don't need to vote in an election," he added. "Social media may be good for encouraging people to go out and vote, but if people don't vote, all that social media does is lull people into a false sense of security that someone out there in the virtual world cares, listens and takes action."

He said posting an opinion in social media is only virtual democracy, like playing a video game for fun.

"The results often don't matter in the real world of decision making and creating laws. Political leaders respond best to actions, such as voting, rather than just words," he said. "If talk is cheap, on-line opinion is even cheaper."

WOMAN ASSAULTED

BRADFORD – A woman was knocked to the ground and dragged inside a home here just before midnight Tuesday.

South Simcoe police say a neighbour heard two people arguing outside and the woman was pushed down, then dragged inside.

The neighbour ran to the house and banged on the door, then said he was calling police.

The victim was able to escape and officers arrived. She was not injured.

A 29-year-old Bradford man was arrested, then charged with assault and sexual assault.

He was held for a bail hearing. The investigation is continuing.

MAN DAMAGES FOUR VEHICLES

An Innisfil man was arrested Monday after an argument with his ex-wife and damage to four vehicles Sunday.

In Bradford that evening, a man returning his children to his ex-wife took exception to a male friend visiting her. South Simcoe police say the tail lights of her car were kicked and smashed.

A truck was then reversed sharply, crashing into two parked vans in the driveway, police said. The woman had to jump out of the way.

The man left the scene and refused to return when called by police. No one was injured.

On Monday, a 45-year-old man was arrested at his Newmarket work place. He was charged with mischief, dangerous driving and failing to stop after an accident.

The man was held in custody for a court appearance.

DRUNK DRIVES INTO FLOWER BED

BRADFORD – A local man faces an impaired driving charge after a car crashed into the centre median and ended up in a flower bed Sunday night.

South Simcoe police say it happened at the corner of Holland Street East and Bridge Street at about 11:15 p.m.

The car crossed all lanes on the road before stopping in the flower bed, in front of a local business.

When officers arrived, a man was seen staggering on the street, police said. A witness identified him as the car's driver.

He was arrested and taken to the police station for breath tests. Police say he blew three times the legal limit.

A 41-year-old man is charged with impaired driving and driving with more than the legal limit of alcohol in his blood system.

Dog A Fair promotes Leash Free Dog Park

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

The Innisfil Leash Free Dog Park Committee held another fundraising "Dog A'Fair" at the Stroud Community Centre on Saturday, June 7, 2014, with vendors, displays and demonstrations all geared towards dog-lovers.

From a display by the St. John Ambulance Therapy Dog unit - including both the unit's biggest dog (Boomer the Bull Mastiff) and smallest (Patches the Chihuahua) - to the Georgian Bay Retriever Club's Retriever Trials, Disc Dog demonstrations, a Silent Auction, BBQ and more, there was plenty to see and do.

There was also a new energy, now that Town of Innisfil has set aside a 4 acre portion of Centennial Park on the 7th Line for a leash-free Dog Park, and has approved the budget to get the work done.

"I'm very excited that we finally have a location," said Committee Chair Linda Ianchelevici - and that community partners are on board. "We have a local landscaper who's donating landscaping. A local doggy daycare is donating agility equipment," Ianchelevici said - and the funds raised by the Committee will be going towards a number of other "extras", like benches, water, and possibly a pergola.

"We wanted our park to be different - a fun park. We're not the biggest, but we're going to be the most fun." She noted that the tender has gone out, and a tentative opening date has been set for September. "We're looking very much forward to it. We've been working hard for a very long time," Ianchelevici said.

Helpful hints for happy healthy teeth from Applewood Dental

Special to the Innisfil Examiner

A Tip for the Sweet Tooth

Everyone knows that sweets are bad for your teeth.

But, did you know that the amount of sweet food you eat is not as important as the length of time your teeth are exposed to sweets?

Eat sweets at mealtime rather than between meals. The amount of saliva produced at that time will help protect your teeth.

If you cannot avoid sweets between meals, choose something with less sugar like nuts and seeds, peanut butter, popcorn, plain yogurt.

Sticky sweets that stay in your mouth for longer periods of time like toffee or hard candies should be avoided as snacks.

Vitamins, Minerals and Your Teeth

Just like our bodies, our teeth and gums need certain essential vitamins and minerals to stay healthy and strong.

Babies, children and adults all need ample amounts of the minerals calcium and phosphorous, and the vitamins A, C and D to ensure proper tooth development and strength.

Calcium, aided by phosphorous and vitamin D, is the main component of teeth and bones. It's what helps keep them strong.

Vitamin A is necessary for the formation of tooth enamel, and vitamin C is essential for healthy gums.

Nursing mothers should keep in mind that their diet may influence the growth of the newly-forming teeth of their baby.

A nursing mother's diet should include foods from all of the food groups.

An adequate intake of the proper vitamins and minerals helps in the development of healthy teeth. A lack or absence of these minerals can lead to disease. Fluoride is an important mineral for tooth decay prevention.

Fluoride strengthens the enamel of young developing teeth, and acts with calcium and phosphorous to restore and harden enamel in mature teeth. Fortunately for our teeth, fluoride has been added to almost half of the drinking water in Canada.

If your drinking water comes from a well, you may want to have your water tested for the presence of natural fluoride.

Contact your local health unit for more information. As with the overall health of our body, a good diet is the best way to ensure dental nutrition.

Strong teeth need a variety of whole grain breads and cereals, fruits and vegetables and lean meats, in addition to milk products.

Toothhealthy snacks also include nuts and seeds, peanut butter, cheese, plain yogurt and popcorn.

At Applewood Dental we are committed to our community. We value being a part of this growing community and want to give back to Innisfil in any way we can.

This coming weekend will be Innisfil's annual Summerfest. Come visit our booth with your family and friends on Saturday, June 14. We will be handing out fun giveaways all day. When you stop by to say hello, don't forget to enter our draw for your chance to win one of two fantastic prizes!

This year we decided to enter the cardboard boat race. Come cheer our team on as we battle to the finish! We look forward to meeting new faces as well as seeing familiar ones. Hope to see you there!

Have a safe and happy summer from everyone at Applewood Dental!

Beautiful music at Innisfil Lions Hall

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

The Alexander Doan School of Music held its first-ever recital in the Innisfil Lions Hall, on Saturday, June 7, featuring 18 young performers, some performing via video.

The school, founded by Alexander (Dave) Doan (above), offers lessons for children and adults on piano, clarinet, saxophone, flute and recorder, and uses some of the latest apps and music programs to help make learning accessible and fun.

In fact, Doan also introduced the new apps that will be launching this fall, to make it even easier to access programs, lessons and a new loyalty program, that rewards students with free lessons.

And the students, performing solos or accompanied by their teacher, made beautiful music together at the Innisfil Lions Hall.

For more information about the award-winning school of music, see www.ASOM.ca, call 705-431-8119.

STREET CATS RESCUE: Shilo is looking for a new home

You want 'em.....we've got em! We are inundated with kitten cuteness right now. Each kitten receives age appropriate vaccines, parasite treatment and are microchipped. But the really good news, all of our kittens are spayed/neutered prior to adoption. We want to stop the stray/feral cat population explosion right at the source. Pediatric spay/neuter is a win win for everyone. A great deal for the adopter and we know for sure that the cats we adopt out will not be producing more kittens. Contact us at streetcatsrescue@hotmail.com or phone 705-503-2287. We are showcasing cats and kittens for adoption at PetSmart, Barrie from June 9 through June 22. Visit our website www.streetcats.ca

Jury in Douglas Minty case expected back June 30

TRACY MCLAUGHLIN
Special to the Innisfil Examiner

Whether a small folding knife was open or closed continued to be the key issue from the beginning to the end of a coroner's inquest that has explored the shooting death of a mentally challenged man.

On the last day of the inquest, Wednesday, the officer insisted that as 59-year-old Douglas Minty came toward him with the knife in his hand, the blade was open.

As the officer backed away, he shot Minty five times outside of his Elmvale home as his horrified 86-year-old mother watched on June 22, 2009.

The inquest has heard that Minty was upset with a "pushy" salesman that his mother had asked to leave. When the salesman returned to the door, Minty punched him in the face and the salesman called police. When the officer arrived, he spoke with the salesman when suddenly Minty came toward him in a lumbering gait with his pocket knife in his hand.

"I don't know how to be any clearer," said OPP Const. Graham Seguin, who also goes by the name Jeff. "The knife was open. ... I saw him open the knife. He came at me with the knife. He closed the knife after he was shot."

As Minty lay dying on the street, the officer quickly approached him and kicked the knife out of his hand, then began CPR. The knife went skidding across the road and rested on the road near his cruiser. It was in closed position.

In closing arguments, lawyer for the Minty's mother and siblings, who have sat through the inquest each day, insisted the officer's explanation doesn't make sense.

"What officer Seguin describes could not have happened," said lawyer Julian Roy. "It didn't happen. That knife was closed."

Roy noted that the three-step process of opening the folding multi-tool, closing the blade, then closing the multi-tool, would be impossible for a developmentally delayed man who lacked dexterity and who had been shot five times – once in the shoulder — and was seconds away from death. He called on the jury to ask for an independent civilian review of the case.

But other lawyers on the inquest, including those representing Ontario Provincial Police, the Ontario Provincial Police Association, the Ministry of Community Safety and Correctional Services, as well as the lawyer representing Seguin, all insist the knife was open.

"There is no question the knife blade was open," said ministry lawyer Ken Hogg, who noted the officer yelled at Minty several times to drop the weapon. "All Mr. Minty had to do was drop the weapon. ... We don't know why he didn't."

He said the use of a firearm by the officer was a reasonable use of force when being confronted with a knife.

While some of the lawyers asked the jury to consider making a recommendation that 911 call-takers find out if the person has a mental or emotional problem, Hogg suggested that information would not have helped the officer in this circumstance. "It's not relevant," Hogg said. "If the officer knew he was developmentally delayed, did that mean there was less of a risk? Absolutely not. ... In fact, a person with mental or emotional problems may present an even greater risk."

Seguin's lawyer, Andrew McKay, said his client acted in a reasonable way and had no other choice. He pointed out the volatile risks police officers must face each day, using the example of recent deaths of three RCMP officers who were shot down by a gunman in Moncton, N.B., last week.

"Every once in a while these tragedies happen ... It brings it home that (notion of) 'Gee, it could happen again'," McKay said. "Const. Seguin is a trained police officer, a father, a husband. He did not want to cause harm to Mr. Minty."

McKay said the key element in this case was better training for the 911 call-takers, who need to relay more information for police officers at crime scenes. The jury is expected back with a list of recommendations June 30.

Innisfil resident hits the jackpot

Special to the Innisfil Examiner

Innisfil resident Vanessa Di Leo is on 'cloud 6/49' after winning $80,059.20 in the May 3, 2014 LOTTO 6/49 draw.

"When I first realized I won over $80 thousand I took a deep breath. I couldn't believe I just won the lottery," shared the 21 year old student, while at the OLG Prize Centre in Toronto to claim her prize. "I didn't go to the gym as planned but went home to put my winning ticket in a safe place."

After storing her ticket, Vanessa continued to the gym. "It was a great workout! I couldn't stop smiling!"

Vanessa, who has only been playing the lottery for about a year, plans to help her family and friends, pay for school and do some travelling with her winnings.

"Real life is still going on but this feels so unreal. I'm speechless and elated!" concluded Vanessa.

Since LOTTO 6/49 was launched in June 1982, Ontario players have won more than $10 billion in prizes, including 1,282 jackpot wins.

THE BARRIE EXAMINER Innisfil

Keep clean-up a breeze this barbecue season

(NC) There's nothing better than firing up the grill and enjoying your summertime favourites on the patio. But even if your next barbecue masterpiece is finger-licking good, it can still leave a mess.

Spend less time on prep and clean-up and more time enjoying the season with these easy backyard barbecue tips, courtesy of the Canadian paper towel brand, Royale Tiger Towel:

- Save trips back and forth to the kitchen. Use a sturdy tray or condiment caddy to carry your favourite toppings, cutlery and napkins in one trip.
- Don't let spills and messes build up on the outside of your barbecue. As soon as the surface cools, spray it with barbecue-friendly cleaner and wipe with a paper towel. Do the same for any work surfaces and patio furniture.
- Corn on the cob is a staple for many backyard meals, but removing the silk can be tough. Make it easy by running a moistened paper towel over the kernels after the husk has been removed.

- Keep paper towels secure and within reach by attaching the holder to the bottom of a picnic table. Then, just pop in a roll as needed.
- Help create a non-stick surface and reduce the mess that's left behind after grilling by dipping a paper towel in a small amount of oil, holding it with metal tongs and carefully rubbing it over the barbecue grate.
- Quickly chill drinks by wrapping a bottle or can with a wet paper towel and sticking it in the freezer for approximately 10 to 15 minutes. Just keep track of the time to ensure drinks don't freeze all the way to avoid an unwanted mess.

Summer brings out aggressive knocks at the door

(NC) While you're outside gardening or enjoying the weather on your front porch, others are also taking advantage of the situation: door-to-door salespeople.

"For a number of years now aggressive door-to-door salespeople promoting water heater rentals and replacements have been a top complaint of Ontario homeowners," says John Macdonald, president and CEO of EnerCare Inc., a leading provider of energy efficient products, including water heater rentals. "We want to make sure that consumers know what to look out for if a salesperson comes to their home, so that they can make an informed decision."

Be cautious if a water heater salesperson says things such as:

"We're from your current water heater provider, utility or local municipality." – Direct Energy, government agencies and utilities do not promote the exchange of water heaters door-to-door, so if someone says this, they are likely misrepresenting themselves.

"Government regulations say your plastic venting materials need to be replaced due to safety reasons." – First, your water heater provider or utility would never send someone to your house for a service call unannounced. Second, regulations only require venting updates when a water heater is replaced and not before.

"Our water heater is more efficient than the one you have in your home." – There is no way of guaranteeing that the salesperson knows the age and type of water heater you currently have or the energy efficiency and savings from upgrading. We suggest you contact your service provider to ask them about any upgrade options.

"We can replace your water heater free of charge." – You may be signing a long-term rental contract with a new company. Review the contract and take the time to do some research about this new company and their service.

"We need to see your current bills." – Never share your personal information with a door-to-door salesperson because there is no reason they would ever need to see your bill.

"We need to look at your current water heater." – Never permit a salesperson to invite themselves into your house. If you are interested in an upgrade, or in having your unit serviced, we suggest you contact your current provider and schedule an appointment.

You can learn more about how to better protect yourself against aggressive door-to-door sales people at www.FactsBeforeYouAct.ca.

PRATT HOMES
Your Award Winning Builder

Put safety first with DIY projects

(NC) Many more of us are rolling up our sleeves these days to tackle home improvement projects, thanks to the growing popularity of television shows, blogs, and Pinterest.

Did you know, however, that routine renovations could damage natural gas pipes and cause a leak? Before placing power tools on the wall or shovels in the ground, there are some important safety considerations that should be built into your home renovation plan.

If you have a natural gas range, fireplace, dryer or barbecue, you will have natural gas pipes running throughout your house, according to Enbridge Gas Distribution. It's important to locate these pipes before beginning any work as you could easily damage them (even during the most routine renovations) and cause a gas leak.

A licensed heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) contractor should identify all hidden piping before you begin your project. If natural gas pipelines must be moved, this work must be conducted by an HVAC contractor – this should never be attempted on your own.

Natural gas pipes, lines and cables are also buried underground outside your home. Any outdoor projects like building a deck, installing a fence or planting a tree requires calling before you dig.

Digging in the wrong spot could cause serious damage, injury or death. You might also cut off service to the entire neighbourhood or receive a costly fine. To find out where it's safe to dig, call Ontario

One Call at 1-800-400-2255 at least five days before starting your project. This free underground utility locating service is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

While renovating, keep in mind that your natural gas appliances need room to breathe. If you're adding partitions or walls near your furnace, water heater or other natural gas appliances, ensure that they have an adequate air supply. An HVAC contractor can help you evaluate the situation and provide expert advice on how to safely execute your plan.

Installing insulation, using solvents or chemical strippers, and sanding and refinishing may release dust, flying particles, toxic fumes or other contaminants. To stay safe, make sure you have protective clothing, including safety goggles and masks.

Remember, natural gas smells like rotten eggs. If you smell gas at any point during your renovation, leave the area and call the utility's emergency number from outside or from a neighbour's home.

More information on renovation safety can be found at www.sixsecondsafety.com.

Rent a beautiful summer house, not a doghouse

(NC) Renting the perfect cottage or cabin can be a relaxing and affordable option for those who want to escape a summer-in-the-city with their loved ones.

With so many tools available now, renting the right place for you and your family is as easy as the click of a button. But while it may seem simple, renters still need to do their due diligence to make sure they're renting a great summer house, not a doghouse.

"There are many important items to consider when looking for a summer cottage rental," says Craig Richardson, a vice president at TD Insurance. "A little bit of planning can make all the difference in finding a vacation cottage where you can have peace of mind while creating lasting memories."

Richardson offers some quick tips for first time renters:

Search smart – Create a cottage wish-list including the amenities you will need. Use reputable vacation-rental websites or speak to friends and family for referrals.

Ask questions – Contact the owner to get a better understanding of the offering and their expectations during your stay. Having an open and transparent relationship with the cottage owner is important to prevent miscommunication later on. Ask about amenities, supplies, appliances, emergency materials like first aid kits and fire extinguishers, and the proximity to hospitals, police and fire departments.

Ensure you're insured – Canadians looking to rent cottages within Canada are likely covered by the property owner's policy. It's important to check with the owner to make sure this is in place.

Get the terms in writing – Read the rental agreement carefully and save a copy of these terms for your reference.

By keeping these easy tips in mind, cottage renters can get ready for a great summer getaway. More information is available at www.tdinsurance.com.

Kids play – get creative with baking soda

(NC) To unleash creativity and encourage scientific inquiry, it's important to stimulate a child's mind with exploration and play. Often, this is as simple as turning to your own kitchen cupboards.

Baking soda, for example, along with other household products, is a key ingredient for activities and projects. Rain or shine, for birthdays or class projects, the options are endless. You can make watercolours, play clay, magic beans and the well-known erupting volcano. With adult supervision, kids can be given creative license for fun all day.

To make simple watercolour paint with baking soda, follow these easy instructions:

What you need:

2 tablespoons Arm & Hammer Baking Soda
2 tablespoons flour

2 easpoons sugar
1 packet dry unsweetened drink mix (any flavour)
2 tablespoons water

How to make it:

1. Mix dry ingredients in a bowl.
2. Add water and stir until fizzing stops; different drink mix flavours will give you different colours.
3. For more intense watercolour, a few drops of food colouring can be added to the mix.
4. Paint with them right away, or pour into jar lids or a plastic tray and let harden for future use.

HUGE SAVINGS NOT HUGE COMMISSIONS

Selling your home can be a very stressful process when you are not properly prepared, and when you don't have the right information, it can be even harder. It is our job as REALTORS® to provide you with that Information as well as to guide and assist you through the entire process.

Most homes get sold through REALTORS® and the MLS® system. The problem many home owners encounter is the high cost of real estate commissions and the inflexibility of REALTORS® in adjusting their fees to accommodate today's marketplace. Because we do not have the large office and its related expense we are able to charge a lower commission rate while providing the same, and in some instances better, more personalized service to our clients.

We place your property on the local real estate board, on REALTOR.ca, (MLS®) on our corporate website, on our corporate Facebook page and Twitter. We also advertise your property in the real estate section of your local paper.

Secure your principal home before heading to the cottage

(NC) Cottage season for many of us is the greatest lure of the year – and while it's natural to want to get out into the great outdoors as quickly as possible, it is also important to tie up loose ends at home before you head out. "When you're enjoying cottage life, the last thing you want is to be worrying about the safety of your home and belongings," says Craig Richardson, a vice president at TD Insurance. "But it is important to take the extra time to make sure that your primary property is taken care of while you're gone." Richardson offers a quick list of items to run through before you leave for the weekend, a week, or the whole summer:

Secure your property – Secure your home, garage doors and windows. Consider buying a light switch timer to turn your lights on and off according to a schedule.

Pull the plug and stop the flow – Unplug televisions, computers, and kitchen appliances like your coffee pot before you leave. Turn your refrigerator on to "vacation mode" if possible. These steps will not only save power, but protect appliances from power surges. Consider turning off the main water valve before you leave, and drain all the pipes and appliances.

You've (probably) got mail – An overflowing mailbox is a sure sign that homeowners are away. Call the post office to temporarily halt mail if you will be away for an extended period of time, or arrange for a neighbour to collect it. Consider stopping newspaper delivery.

Revisit your home insurance policy – Did you know if you're away from your home for more than seven consecutive days you're required to make arrangements for someone to check in on your place? If you're travelling by road, you might pack a few necessities or favourite gadgets. Review your policy and check with your insurer for Time Away insurance to ensure you're covered.

Keep neighbours in the know – Make arrangements for a trusted friend or neighbour to check on your home. Share your contact information in case of an emergency.

If you've checked off everything on this list, you can enjoy your home-away-from-home knowing your city residence is better protected. More information can be found at www.tdinsurance.com.

Walking around the lakes for disaster preparedness

MIRIAM KING
Innisfil Examiner

Becky Big Canoe will lead the first-ever walk around lakes Simcoe and Couchiching to raise money for disaster preparedness.

The Waawaasegaming Water Walk takes place between June 23 and July 2 and will be done in the spirit of the Mother Earth Water Walks that have already been completed for the Great Lakes.

Big Canoe, 51, a member of Georgina First Nation, will follow the example set by Josephine Madamin of the Three Fires Lodge, the founding chief commissioner of the Anishinabek Women's Water Commission.

"I ran into Grandmother Josephine last summer walking with Tears for Justice and I told her where I was from and she said 'You know, you have to walk your lake.' She was looking me straight in the eye and I felt it in my heart that, yes, I have to do that," said Big Canoe. Madamin will join the walk on the first day, June 23.

People are welcome to join the walk at any point, said Big Canoe. It will come to Orillia from Barrie

June 27 and wind around the north end of Lake Couchiching June 28 and into Rama First Nation June 29-30 before continuing to Gamebridge and Beaverton and ending at Virginia Beach on Lake Simcoe July 2. Big Canoe participated in the first Orillia Memorial March for Murdered and Missing Aboriginal Women in February along with Gladys Radek, who led walks for Tears for Justice in western Canada, calling for a federal inquiry into the issue.

"It's all connected: the health of the land, the health of the people and justice," she said.

The main goal of the walk is to raise money for accidental spills. "I'd like a better Lake Simcoe emergency response system for hazardous spills," she said.

In 2005, there was spill of gasoline in the bay south of Georgina Island and it was difficult to coordinate a clean-up, Big Canoe said.

She said she hopes to form partnerships with local municipalities and their fire departments, police, the Lake Simcoe Region Conservation Authority as well as the federal government.

Lake Simcoe is unique because it has its own legislation to protect it, the Lake Simcoe Protection Act. It is enforced by the federal government, Big Canoe said.

Becky Big Canoe of Georgina Island First Nation will be walking around lakes Simcoe and Couchiching between June 24 to July 2.

"The one we really need to step up to the plate is Transport Canada. They have the responsibility of enforcing federal legislation. We have to be vigilant. We have to step up our efforts to make sure the legislation is enforced and we are prepared if anything happens," she said.

Money raised during the walk will be used to purchase clean-up supplies and provide training to emergency response teams around the lake, she said.

While lakes Simcoe and Couchiching don't have a lot of industry on the lake, there is increasing pressure on the watershed from agriculture, development and population with its demand for drinking water and sewage treatment around the lakes, she said.

"We draw our drinking water from the lake," she said about the 200 residents on Georgina Island.

Waawaasegaming is the original name of Lake Simcoe; the walk also marks the beginning of an effort to reclaim its original name, she said.

"I believe that raising the awareness of the name and doing the ceremony and prayer is a start," she said.

Big Canoe, an Anishinaabe woman, mother and grandmother, said the spiritual work along the walk is as important as raising funds and awareness of water health issues. Women are protectors of the water whereas men are keepers of the fire in the Anishinaabe tradition.

"We have a spiritual connection to this water. That is what is emphasized throughout the Mother Earth Water Walks," she said.
